Ordering Process

Initial Consultation

Once you reach out, I will discuss the cake details with you. This conversation will cover initial ideas for your design and flavor, as well as whether you need a TasterBox.

Throughout this process, I will create a collage of design ideas for you until both parties agree on the design and aesthetic for the wedding.

After finalising the design and flavours, I will provide a personalised quote that reflects the cake's flavour, size, and design.

Securing your Date

Once the quote has been accepted, I will send an invoice that includes instructions for paying a 20% deposit to secure your chosen date.

I can reserve the selected date for up to two weeks until the deposit is paid. If the deposit is not received within this timeframe, the date will become available to other couples. However, if the deposit is received during the two-week period, the date will be confirmed, and I will send a booking confirmation.

Final Checks & Delivery

About a month prior to the wedding, I will reach out to the couple to discuss their vision for the cake. She will inquire whether their design and flavor preferences have changed or remained consistent. Should the couple wish to make adjustments to either the design or flavor, the previously established price may be affected.

In addition, I will coordinate with the venue ahead of the big day to arrange for the cake delivery and setup.

Portion Guide

Every Wedding has different needs of dessert/cake. Depending on your amount of guest and wedding breakfast menu you might only want smaller portions or less than the amount of guests you have attending your wedding.

If you have a dessert with your wedding breakfast meal or if you have opted for a different type of dessert table then you might need less portions than number of guests invited.

Every cake can be tailored to your needs and all the details can be discussed during the initial consultation before the quote is given, to ensure we get your vision right.
